SUMMARIES OF HOME NEWS FROM THE LONDON DAILY PAPERS.
(Daily News.)

SATURDAY, April 20th.

The Countess of Mayo has been appointed Honorary Lady of the Bedchamber to her Majesty.

Notice is given by the Lord Chamberlain in

In the discussion on Mr. Leatham's amendment to the Balfour Bill on Thursday night, 15 Liberal members voted against the Government. As on Monday night, Mr. Leatham, Mr. Macaulay and Lord Bury were the tellers for the majority.

In accordance with a resolution passed at a meeting of Professors of the Royal Academy of Music, nearly twelve months ago, a testimonial was last night presented to Sir W. Stenlands Bennett, as marking the cordial sympathy of musical artists in the honour which her Majesty had been pleased to confer upon him. The gathering took place at St. James's-hall, the Workmen's General in the Chair.—Yesterday the Tobacco case came before the full Court of the Supreme Court. The plaintiff has been ordered to pay the costs of the proceedings commenced an action against the trustees of the Daugherty estate to recover possession of that property. The case was on the list for trial before Mr. Justice Willes, and was likely soon to be called upon. Mr. Hawkins, Q. C. therefore moved for a rule calling upon the plaintiff to show cause why all further proceedings should not be stayed until the costs in the suit of Tobacco v. Lushington had been paid. These amounted to between £40,000 and £50,000. Mr. Justice Willes referred the learned counsel to Mr. Justice Willes, and Mr. Giffard, on behalf of the plaintiff, withdrew.

order that the cause should be appointed for trial before a special jury. It was agreed, after some discussion, that when the cause next appeared upon this list for trial it should be as a special jury cause, without prejudice to either side.

Mr. Registrar Pepsys had yesterday before him the bankruptcy of Mr. J. C. Angerstein, a young gentleman who had just come of age, and was presenting £14,000. His passing was opposed on the ground that he had not fully disclosed his estate; but after the bankruptcy had been examined at some length, the Registrar overruled the objection, and allowed Mr. Angerstein to pass on condition that he

At Bow-street yesterday the hearing of the charge of perjury against two witnesses in the Partridge divorce case was resumed. The evidence of Mrs. Partridge having been brought in, the counsel for the defendant, in the dismissed suit, was called in support of the lady's testimony. The cross-examination of this witness will be opened when the hearing of the case is again taken.

Papers respecting the presentation to the Geneva Tribunal of the Counter Cases of Great Britain and the United States in the Alabama arbitration were laid before Parliament yesterday.

day. Among them is the note addressed to the Arbitrators by Mr. Bancroft Davis on the 15th instant, wherein he reserves the full right of his Government, owing to the objection raised by the British Government that the claims for indirect losses do not come within the scope and intention of the Washington Treaty.

On the 2nd Correspondent says that the opening of the 1st May is to be a day of national festival. Invitations have been addressed to the professors and students of all the Great German Universities to send deputations to take part in the ceremony. The opening address is to be followed by a public dinner, and in the evening there will be an illumination of the spire of the Cathedral. Festivities

It will also take place on the following day. If not apprehended, our Correspondent says, there will be any alterations with the inhabitants, as the German rule has become rather popular than otherwise with the lower classes, and the higher classes, who are still French in feeling, keep in retirement. It is thought that a large number of German students will enter the University of Strasbourg for the express purpose of cultivating friendship with the young Alsatians.

According to a telegram from Tolosan, the famine there is worse than ever; bread is rising in price every day, and further relief must be obtained. Assistance is urgently required.

The Week's News

The special telegram from our correspondent at Berlin appears to indicate a reassured feeling in the German capital. Advisories from Paris have produced a calmer feeling; the Bourne is again firmer; and Count Armin's departure is delayed.

M. Casimir-Perier has declined to come over to St. James in place of the Duc de Broglie. The next choice is said to lie between Count Harcourt, late French Minister at Rome, and M. Lesteleyre.

Excommunication, as a prerogative of the Church, has been challenged by the German Minister of Public Worship in a spirited letter. It was addressed to the Bishop of Ermland, one of the communicators of the Council of Catholics priests. The Minister affirms that, as this spiritual penalty involves civil consequences, it should not be inflicted without the sanction of the State. The Bishop is plainly informed that his own recognition by the Go-permanent depends on his compliance with this administrative rule. He has replied with a very elaborate dissent from the Minister's doctrine that expropriated persons sustain civil or social detriment.

Another making in Spain has grown such a complacent, that when the Minister of Finance declines to present one at present on the ground that "it would be humanly impossible within twelve months to provide permanent resources to meet all requirements," He contemplates, however, a series of very radical reforms designed "to give an impulse to the public wealth."

Turkish hospitality will become a proverb.

A curious dispute occupied the attention of the Court of Probate. James Robert Jeffries, an inmate of a lunatic asylum, expired two hours before his wife, who died the same day at her own residence. The claim to administer the estate was contested by the relatives both of Mr. Jeffries and his wife; but it being decided that the latter had survived, though but for a few minutes, the decision was given in favour of her friends.

A new feature in the Godrich divorce case consists in the renewed application on behalf of the waiter, Harmer, for eleven summonses against witnesses who he said could depose to acts of familiarity between Mr. Godrich and Miss Fowler. Though the instances alleged had nothing to do with the present case, it was argued that they led up to it. The summonses were, however, refused by the magistrate.

his horns tossed him over a fence. The Irishman, recovering from his fall, looked up, and saw the bull pawing and tearing up the ground, as is the custom of the animal when irritated, whereupon Pat smiling at him, said, "If it was not for your bowing and scraping, and humble apologies, you would have been thrown over the fence long since for this offence on purpose."

Literary men are looking forward with no little interest to the appearance of a work which will give you a history of the press. This distinguished scholar, who has been so useful to Egypt, discovered the tablets of the old Egyptian law. These tablets contain 30 commandments, and among the 30 are the 10 commandments of the Mosaic Decalogue. The others refer to such matters as the removal of a neighbor's landmark. It would seem, therefore, as if "the wisdom of the Egyptians," in which Moses was "learned," included the "law" which is described as having been given among the thunders of Sinai.
